

20 Years of Google: Google Assists Drone Assassinations Program

In an open letter, thousands of US academics are protesting against internet giant Google. They protest Google's collaboration with the US administration in the assassination of people via remote-piloted drones.

In an open letter, thousands of US academics are protesting against internet giant Google. They protest Google's collaboration with the US administration in the assassination of people via remote-piloted drones. In the future, these killings are supposed to be done with the help of "artificial intelligence," i.e. a computer software—provided by Google - which works in a completely autonomous and self-optimising way. While human drone pilots develop mental and psychological problems because of murdering at the touch of a button and are burnt-out after few years or even months, artificial intelligence has no heart and knows neither emotions, nor intuition nor conscience. So the murdering can be done much more effectively and accurately. Those who let computers decide over life or death may as well declare open season for the destruction mankind as a whole.
