Hello and welcome to KlaTV! Did you hear about the infant that died in Berlin, apparently of measles? There is a growing criticism of vaccination, as connections between vaccination and massive side effects are brought to light. This seems to be a thorn in the pharmaceutical companies' and governments' flesh. The controversial reporting on the Berlin child that died on February 18th, 2015 was a visible proof for this. Even before a clear cause of death was diagnosed and proven by publicly acknowledged evidence, compulsory vaccination was already loudly discussed. In the reports it is not mentioned that the child suffered from a serious cardiac effect. Instead, Health Senator Mario Czaja announces throughout Germany that the child had died of measles, because it had not been vaccinated against it, even though there are testimonies clearly refuting this. However, those statements are not thoroughly and transparently examined (i.e. by inspecting the vaccination certificate). Instead, the inspection of the records is refused. The question is: are facts withheld in order to come closer to the already planned compulsory vaccination? It's up to you to decide! Goodbye and have a good day!
