The US-web-magazine for art and culture "Salon.com"* that has been awarded several times in the past for provocative articles on gay and lesbian organizations went one step further: Recently the author Todd Nickerson was allowed to publish the following incredible lines: "I have always confessed that I would devote myself to sex-games with children if our society were more positive towards sex. I would never deny this." These sentences are nothing more than a public propaganda of pedophilia as a normal way of life. This makes it clear that there are efforts worldwide to make pedophilia socially acceptable. A relaxation of – for now – taboos to use children for the satisfaction of sexual desire of adults would be almost a moral dam break. All abused people have described their experiences as negative and destructive for their entire later life and as deeply hurtful for their self-esteem. But whoever destroys the future of our children destroys the future of humanity.
