

RESONANCE Beings of Frequency Documentary film by James Russell on the Dangers of Wireless Technology

A documentary impressively revealing the effects which nearly 30 years of man-made electromagnetic frequencies (EMF) from mobile telecommunications and WIFI etc. has had on human beings and the natural world. To the naked eye, the planet appears the same but at a cellular level it's the greatest change that life on earth has ever been subjected to. Scientists, industry representatives, physicians and those affected speak out in this most impressive and watchable film.

More and more people are suffering from health complaints like dizziness, headaches, cardiac arrhythmia or insomnia and stress is often cited as the cause.

The following documentary from 2012 shows that these symptoms are frequently associated with totally different and otherwise less well-known causes.

The film takes us on a journey from our origins and into the nineties, a period in which the expansion of wireless communications technology was just beginning. Since then, mankind has been immersed in an ocean of man-made frequencies. To the naked eye, the planet appears the same but at a cellular level it's the greatest change that life on earth has ever been subjected to. The effects are not to be underestimated.
